

Don't Cut Pills

Cut Profits!

The soaring prices of prescription drugs hit seniors like me particularly hard. Even with Medicare Part D coverage, too many of us are expected to cover thousands of dollars in out-of-pocket costs while living on fixed incomes. It's hard to keep up with prescription prices that rise several times the rate of inflation every year. I have heard too many stories of older people cutting pills in half – or skipping doses altogether – because they can't afford skyrocketing prescription prices. This should be treated as a national crisis. Our elected leaders must pass legislation to reduce drug prices now. Anyone who stands in the way should be booted out of office in 2020.
